

Some reflections on the spiritual and human values in the great Oriental religions

Center of Asian Studies, St. Johns University - A Human Approach to World Peace

Description: -

-
Price policy -- Congresses
Economics -- Mathematical models -- Congresses
Economics -- Congresses
Japan -- Civilization.
Christianity and other religions.
Religions. Some reflections on the spiritual and human values in the great Oriental religions
-
no. 22
St. Johns papers in Asian studies ; Some reflections on the spiritual and human values in the great Oriental religions
Notes: This paper was delivered on May 3, 1975 as the keynote speech at the 5th Annual Conference on Asian Studies sponsored by the Center of Asian Studies.
This edition was published in 1975

Filesize: 52.410 MB

Tags: #Is #There #a #Common #Theme #in #All #Religions?

Greek religious beliefs

In Plato's Timaeus, the world is treated as a living thing, with body and soul. This journey was probably intended to be an actual anticipation of the eventually expected real journey to the stars see Metamorphoses 11. Inference is a conclusion arrived at from the operation of cause and effect, by which one determination merely passes over into a second.

Is There a Common Theme in All Religions?

He did reject christianity while I remained a christian.

Native American Spirituality and Religion

It is characteristic that the god Bel whom Aurelian brought from Asia to set up as the protector of his states, was in reality a Babylonian who had emigrated to Palmyra, a cosmopolitan center apparently predestined by virtue of its location to become the intermediary between the civilizations of the Euphrates and the Mediterranean.

Chinese Religions and Philosophies

The meal consisted of bread and water. Its organic holism and dynamic vitalism give us a special appreciation for the interconnectedness of all life-forms and renews our sense of the inherent value of this intricate web of life.

What Went Wrong In Europe?[br] A Reflection on Western Modernity

The cosmological and the human virtues are seen as part of one dynamic process of transformation in the universe. The forces that fill that vacuum are not necessarily benevolent. We cannot wait for the next generation to make this change; the present generation must attempt a renewal of basic human values.

Related Books

- You ling shi
- Amérique espagnole - de Colomb à Bolivar
- Keigo ronshū - kodai to gendai
- Business organization and management.
- Thermal conductivity of porous catalyst pellets.