Such crosses indicated individual filiation as son, or daughter, of God, and hence individual commitment as God's child; they recorded Christian filiation and the subscription of a solemn oath made in the presence and in the name of Christ crucified.

The ecumenical significance of eucharistic conversion.

Kempe renegotiates her own cultural position by means of such identification and role-playing. For in them the form of the likeness of God is expressed, and when we impress ourselves on them through imitation, then we too are reshaped according to the image of that same likeness. Nonetheless, it looks on everything as an autonomous, isolated, independent object.

Chapter 1: How the Eucharist Evolved

Einig sind sich alle Theologen auch darüber, dass eine solche Liebe und Reue nicht durch den sündigen Menschen selbst erzeugt werden kann, sondern immer eine Gnadenwirkung Gottes in der Seele ist.
