Welcome to our new website! He made up the first British wirehaired pointer field... The Hungarian wirehaired vizsla HWV is a relatively new breed, created a century ago in Hungary by crossing smooth-haired vizslas with other pointer breeds — among them the German wirehaired pointer and the pudelpointer — to produce the dog we know today.

Ferruginous Hawk (Buteo regalis)

Some are of the real wolf colour; others black, white, or spotted with black and white, and differing only by the tail being rather more turned up. The goal is not to ignore patterns of human biological or genetic diversity, but rather to identify new methods to explore these patterns that do not reproduce the harm caused when human biological variation is treated as a mere synonym for racial categories built on the hierarchical organization of people. Otherwise their coat keeps growing and turns into a matted mass.
