From 1717 to 1719, he was in with the French court master-builder , the architect , and with the philologist. Honorific columns or called triumphal columns inspired by Trajan were created in use to commemorate recent victories as well. Here as in no other place the legend of Sisi becomes tangible, with this imaginatively designed display shedding light in the mystery surrounding the personality of this fascinating woman.

Charles but was also a monument to the emperor himself. The 24 rooms in the apartments occupied by Emperor Franz Joseph and his wife Elisabeth, comprising studies, residential suites and reception rooms, are all furnished and decorated to the highest standards of historical authenticity, and in their comparative restraint form a fascinating contrast to the exuberant splendor of imperial summer residence at Schönbrunn. His book, which reveals the wide range of his learning, was the first comparative history of the architecture of all times and all nations; it included significant specimens of Egyptian, Persian, Greek, Roman, Muslim, Indian, and Chinese architecture, illustrated by engravings with explanatory notes.

His Entwurf einer historischen Architektur 1721; A Plan of Civil and Historical Architecture was the first successful comparative study of architecture. Judas Thaddäus made of limewood. In 1713, the plague epidemic has claimed over 8,000 lives, so the church was constructed for thanking god for delivering Vienna.
