14 Animals You Didn't Know Live in the Nile

Reaching up to 2m long and 200kg, these beasts are easily the largest fish found in the Nile.

Canada's forgotten rainforest

And what creatures reside in the cleaner parts of the river, such as Lake Nasser and the river south of the Aswan dam? But, when you add up all the other ecosystem benefits that we get for free from these forests, they greatly exceed the one-time benefit we get from knocking them down and converting them into wood products.

Exploration of the Valley of the Amazon, Vol. II

Tall cedar trees, some in clumps of three or four, stretch as far as the eye can see. You should probably steer clear of the Nile — there are up to 10 venomous snakes that live in the Nile River valley habitat.

African common toad African common toads are native to Egypt and found in basically any habitable area with a permanent water source. Some border popular protected areas like Bowron Lakes Provincial Park, making them ideal candidates to spare, Connolly points out. Here, in the old-growth management area, beside the planned clear-cut, Connolly and her colleagues have marked out a circular area one hectare in size, one of 28 such areas they are studying in different locations in the rainforest.

Animal Friends

This program is an easy way to donate and help save the lives of homeless animals! Its body, which can reach a length of up to one meter, is surrounded by a small, symmetrical electric field used to sense surrounding environments and for stunning prey. The Vundu catfish, a fish of many names across many countries, can grow up to 130 kg. The valley bottom, where caribou migrate to find lichen during deep-snow winters, is also slated to be logged.
