What was the Battle for Australia 1942

In the chair was the Australian representative, Norman Makin, then a Cabinet minister in the Chifley government and shortly to become Australian ambassador in Washington. Finally, is it true that we have consistently refused American charter companies landing rights while we awaited the birth of Qantair? The Trobriand nuclear complex revisited Canberra anthropology. He played a major part in the San Francisco Conference which adopted the UN Charter and claimed a leading role for himself in the first turbulent years of the organisation's existence.
