Commonwealth: Britain losing her grip?

In 1948 Burma became independent and rejected membership.

Witness Seminar

Whether or not you liked the positioning in terms of the branding of the event, it was evident that we — the UK — were making an effort and were taking it seriously. Small states would say that following on from that was where the World Bank in particular recognised the special nature of small states.

Commonwealth period

It was regarded as an important tool. I think there was an impatience for a rather more directed approach in that respect. They are extremely concerned about fake news, so we may find that there will be more educated articles and statements made in the media — let us keep our fingers crossed anyway.

Commonwealth

I will come back to that in a moment. At that time, I was working for British Airways. We cannot study all of the countries that became independent - there are too many of them and they all became independent at different times.

Commonwealthmen

Humphrey Maud Sir Humphrey Maud 1934-2013. Most of the dependent states granted independence chose Commonwealth membership, and the organization has even grown to include joined 1995 , which was the first country granted entry that was never part of the British Empire or under the control of any member. In 1996 the Commonwealth Africa Investment Fund was established to increase investment in that.
