Kitab al

I seek Thy shelter from the misery and disgrace I come across in this world, and the trouble I may have to face on the Day of Judgement; I take shelter under Thy kind and compassionate, equitable ways and means, and Thy glorious majesty that does not fix terms predestination, and Thy omnipotence that does not arbitrarily prevent things from obeying the operation of evil of this world and the hereafter if they choose to be in the thick of it; also it is true in connection with the evil of hunger and diseases, and evil of all type of violence.
