Psychology of Judgment and Decision

Heuristics allow us to cope with the complex environment surrounding our decisions. There is only one person in the room that knows how the trick was performed and everyone else is left to feel a little stupid. In contrast, changing the decision architecture to an opt-out policy improves consent rates to 85.

The Psychology of Judgment and Decision Making

This brief and entertaining exercise allows readers to compare their answers with the responses people gave in the original studies and to better understand their own processes of choosing. But, preferably, System 2 logic should influence our most important decisions.
