Grand Tour

Though certainly not an overly trying experience for most, the Grand Tour presented a unique set of challenges for travelers to overcome. One of the most popular and most unlikely art historians the world has known died yesterday at the age of 88. The resulting thirteen-episode series became a milestone in television history, pioneering the 'presenter as hero' model of authored documentary.

Grand Tour

She joined the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, a teaching order, and studied English literature at the University of Oxford, graduating in 1953 with highest honors. A spokeswoman for the monastery, Gina Rozner, confirmed the death. After suffering three grand mal seizures and learning that she had a form of epilepsy, she received Vatican consent to give up teaching for a life of solitude.
