party into several factions.

Italian Social Movement

Yet when an election was held a few days afterwards for the factory council in FIAT, the FIOM got 631 votes and the fascist syndicate only 38. In the afternoon the strike became solid. They were mostly led by officers who had much military experience and manned by layabouts who could easily be moved at any time.

Italian Socialist Republic

The new party, which took with it half the MSI parliamentary representation and nearly all of its public finance, was however dissolved in the aftermath of the in 1979.

Benito Mussolini

The fascists stood only in Milan and got, no one elected. Eventually half a million workers were involved, both unionised and unorganised. In 1919, the party won 49.
