KINABALU: TARAP

Roasted, the seed has firm texture, nutty, not too oil and has a taste reminiscent of chestnut. Considering its rarity and problematic exporting, the only way to enjoy this tropical delicacy is to grow one of your own! We are really happy to be living here in Sarawak. It tastes like the sweetest custard apple or soursop, but it is smooth, not grainy.

TARAP: A Drama, A Soap Or A Waste Of Time?

Marang can be grown in container inside a greenhouse, where it will enjoy high humidity. Adapting is okay if you use your own words and pictures and acknowledge the source web page.

Tarap fruit of Borneo

The fruit arils are all nestled inside, attached loosely to the stem. Twisting and gently pulling the halves complete the operation.

Newsmaker: Jason Tarap

Each fruit is only about 1 Kg in weight, a serving suitable as a tasty dessert after meal. They will be wrapped in yellow tendrils extending from the husk and stuck to the main stem of the fruit found in the center.

Tarap (TV series)

Must be hiding from the viewers to make a grand entry in the coming episodes! It is cultivated in Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, and Southern Thailand. Ini kerana buah tarap yang masak ranum berstruktur lembut dan kulitnya yang terbuka akan mudah jatuh apabila tangkai buahnya cuba dipusing dan dipulas. Just contact us with your inquiry.
