Most Protestant denominations that originated in the Reformation were founded on Calvinistic confessions of faith, such as the Thirty-nine Articles Anglicanism, the Canons of Dort Reformed, the Westminster Standards Presbyterianism, the Savoy Declaration Congregationalism, and the Baptist Confession of 1689 Baptist.

Reformed Churchmen: 21 December 1552 A.D. Katie Luther Buried at City Church ("St. Mary's), Torgau, Germany—Wife of Martin Luther

During the short reign of his young son Edward VI 1547—1553, who, together with his council, had a great heart for true reformation, some gains were made, especially by Archbishop Thomas Cranmer 1489—1556 through his book Homilies, his Book of Common Prayer, and his Forty-Two Articles of Religion. Accordingly, it is consistent with Scripture that we should be free and we wish to be so. Luther's harsh comments about the Jews are seen by many as a continuation of medieval Christian, and as the above quote shows, reflects earlier anti-Semitic expulsions in the, when Jews from other countries like France and Spain were invited into Germany.
