Approval and supervision of a faculty member is required. Public sector doctors struck for two months ending in compromise due to disunity with other health workers ; judicial workers were also on strike for three weeks, along with a host of local strikes including a five-day general strike in Benue State.

Week 1 Short Responses HIS 200 Applied History

By 2000 sub-Saharan African governments were still spending over twice as much on debt service as on basic healthcare and almost as much on debt as they spent on education. This decline in the terms of trade did not just arise naturally, but was due, at least partly, to explicit policies, this time adopted by the World Bank. Analysis of a current issue regarding government tax or expenditure programs using tools developed in public finance.

Courses

A new approach or more of the same? An introduction to the fundamentals of microeconomic and macroeconomic analysis. The real inflation adjusted interest rates paid by governments of the Global South increased from -4 percent in 1975 to over 10 percent a decade later, as is shown in figure 3.

Economic History

Africans have been encouraged to grow crops for export, especially over the last 50 years. The terms of trade for low income African countries declined by over 15 percent during 1973-6 and by nearly 14 percent further during 1979-82. Consumer, policymaker, and labor concerns including the establishment and coordination of international labor standards, corporate codes of conduct, enforcement in the World Trade Organization and International Labor Organization, monitoring of working conditions, and other remedies are analyzed.

Africa rising? The economic history of sub

In West Africa the armed forces of the Asante Empire defeated the British forces and killed their commander, the governor of the Gold Coast now Ghana in 1824. So the economy of sub-Saharan Africa faced a triple whammy in the early 1980s of declining terms of trade, increased interest rates on existing debts and lack of access to further loans.
