Un banco comercial es una institución financiera que actúa como intermediario en el juego de la oferta y la demanda entre compradores y vendedores de recursos financieros; esta denominación sirve para distinguirla de los llamados , que igualmente prestan fondos a empresas pero

también adquieren acciones de dichas empresas. Los bancos comerciales también realizan otros servicios como el cobro de impuestos o el cambio de monedas y billetes. En el pasado, los bancos comerciales no han estado muy interesados en préstamos para bienes raíces y han puesto solo un relativamente pequeño porcentaje de sus bienes en hipotecas.
