The History of ADA

Every river valley and Indian trail became a fissure in Indian society, and so that society became honeycombed. Later that year, after the well was deepened to 600 feet with what was perhaps the first steam rig employed in oil well drilling in California, it produced at a rate of 150 barrels a day - it is still producing after 77 years 1953.

Empowering Communities Through Storytelling

This frontier stretched along the western border like a cord of union. John Marsh, one of the most cantankerous figures in Northern California history, an Indian trader and self-professed doctor who fought with the Sioux in the Black Hawk War, settled in Eastern Contra Costa in 1838, prospered — but met an unhappy end.
