Liquefied petroleum gas

Modern methods of welding as applied to workshop practice, describing various methods: oxy-acetylene welding, electric seam welding.

Damaging chemicals can be produced from the fuel, from the work-piece, or from a protective coating on the work-piece.

Evaluating Hazards and Assessing Risks in the Laboratory

Not all automobile engines are suitable for use with LPG as a fuel. In some laboratories, CHPs include standard operating procedures for work with specific chemical substances, and in these cases the CHP may be sufficient as the primary source of information used for risk assessment and experiment planning.

Another low cost approach commonly used by jewelry makers in Asia is using air bubbled through a gasoline container by a foot-operated air pump, and burning the fuel-air mixture in a specialized welding torch. In the inner cone the acetylene breaks down and partly burns to hydrogen and , which in the outer cone combine with more oxygen from the surrounding air and burn.

Evaluating Hazards and Assessing Risks in the Laboratory

Effects may be short-term or long-term. Are any of the workers involved in the experiment pregnant or likely to become pregnant? These can be categorized as atmospheric, physical, and biological hazards. These can be a hazard if a person stares into the beam and resists the natural reaction to blink or turn away.
