Fuel Required for Field Operations

Staying prepared for the worst often means having the right equipment on hand.

Proper Fuel Handling Keeps Farm Machinery Running

Dan Kerr is a retired forensic investigator and for the past five years, writes a maintenance column for Small Farm Canada magazine. In 2001, 31 percent of all youth living and working on a farm had operated an ATV, and ATV related injuries accounted for 10 percent of the non-fatal injuries of children under 20. Insulating the ceiling takes 15 percent less insulation and gives 15 percent better heat loss protection than insulating the roof area.
