Please see the March 18, 2020 Family Home providers are more than welcome to use the process for increasing capacity of their services. Ed Rendell D created the Pennsylvania Early Learning Investment Commission by executive order in 2008 to focus on the business case for early childhood. The gap between expenses and revenues is much larger for infant and toddler care than it is for care of preschool-age children.

Governor's Commission on Early Learning

A number of steps must be taken to ensure that all universal preschool programs meet the needs of families and children and achieve their full potential.

Early Learning and Child Care

Deserts vary significantly by state; even within states, there are areas that are more likely than others to be child care deserts. Governors can do this by including early childhood education in their State of the State addresses and their budgets, as well as by elevating public awareness of the issue. To achieve this goal, states should progressively increase eligibility thresholds until they reach 150 percent of state median income, which would cover most of the children and families who need support.
