Becoming America: An Exploration of American Literature from Precolonial to Post

Durand died at the age of 90 years, an exceptional expanse of time in an era when the life expectancy was limited to 45 to 50 years in America. This collection of prose and poetry by Iranian writers lifts that curtain for a glimpse of that country's recent past through the eyes of many of its most creative writers. The numerous points of similarity between the fight against slavery and the fight for the first civil right to life are striking.
