Express your sexuality and do not be ashamed of it. In an emergency, the driver may have to do something break through a barricade or execute a J-turn and even though there is always a supervisor sitting next to him, there might be a few seconds when the life of the president hangs on the driver's instinctive reaction. And in a lot of relationships -- or pseudo-relationships, rather -- guys may not take the women they're fraternizing with seriously.

In this case, the shock of seeing blood, which I hadn't expected, lasted only a split second. This is going to offer you a host of physical benefits, including better breathing and better back support, but just as important, it's going to make you look and feel more confident.

Joe Swanson

Speaking too quickly or in a low tone of voice can make you appear less than confident. So, too, firemen, soldiers, sailors, and pilots. So we work a lot of assassination scenarios around cars, all of them authentically played out with presidential limousines and crowds and explosives, and with mock assassins firing guns.

Standing Tall: How a Man Can Protect His Family

When I went to see Dealey Plaza for myself some years after the assassination, I was amazed at how short the distance was from Oswald's hiding place to the president's limousine. Oswald also had a scope, which made the target very big. In addition to being a subtle mark of attraction, it's also quite chivalrous, as you are at once leading her while also letting her go first.
