Painter Tsoclis on triage: I'd rather save an old man with than a teenager or a baby

Is this the Greek intellectuals we deserve? Just look at my lad! You will find them reprising traditional motifs, while some struggle to open up new artistic paths — a difficult task under the weight of tradition. There he learned to blend the imaginary with the tangible.

Costas Tsoclis: Painting, Limits and Transgressions

His works for public spaces include the forecourt of the Archaeological Museum in Thessaloniki 1988 , and the Ethnikis Amynis underground railway station in Athens 2000.

This Breathtaking Greek Island Is Home to More Than 700 Churches

On the outskirts of the lovely village of Pyrgos, the sleek stone-and-glass leads visitors through exhibits ranging from how the stone is quarried to how it's carved.

In 1986 he represented Greece at the Venice Biennale together with Christos Caras. The peak is conquered by persistent climbers, who scale it with breath-taking ease using organized mountain routes. That kind of quietude is what makes Tinos such a prized sanctuary for people like Mareva Grabowski, cofounder of the Greek fashion label.

This Breathtaking Greek Island Is Home to More Than 700 Churches

Farmers and herders on the island, artists at heart, have created with their hands the landscape that we take for granted today. It is the shadows of the clouds which rush over the island, the trees bent in the north wind, and the wild waves whipped up by the south wind. In 1960 he settled down in Paris where he lived until 1984 when he permanently returned to Athens.

Sister Iouliano invited me to touch the pillow. He represented Greece at the 1986 Venice Biennale.

Costas Tsoclis: Painting. Limits and Transgressions

Tsoclis showed an early interest in the visual arts, assisting Stephanos Almaliotis, a traditional painter, in his workshop from age 12.

COSTAS TSOCLIS

Mussels with capers and anise were served with a garnish of wild fennel. He went on to live and work in Rome 1957-1960 with a scholarship from the State Scholarships Foundation. Almost everyone I spoke to credited the Virgin with protecting Tinos from the fate that befell , only a 30-minute ferry ride away but a world apart.
