Haiku

In her first year of high school, she was recruited by to become the manager for. I managed to name her without much trouble.

Kiyoko Shimizu

The sound editing and effects are some of the best in the business, as Haikyuu delivers again with its realistic gymnasium sounds and crowd noises. During the first set, she sees how Tanaka is greatly affected from being repeatedly blocked and denied sets but showed support when he was finally able to make his cross shot work; revealing to Takeda that she is fully aware of how strong Tanaka really is.

Haikyuu!!: Karasuno Koukou vs. Shiratorizawa Gakuen Koukou

Filled with restlessness and excitement, both teams are determined to come out on top in the third season of Haikyuu!!. But I've come to realize that the quality of an anime goes beyond how it makes you think.

If an anime lacks story surely the characters would be memorable right? Luckily, Haikyuu isn't about the overall story as much as it is about character development and backstory.

It is one thing to be able to guess the eventual winner, but for example I should not be able to so easily say in which order the sets are going to be won by the respective sides, because it is all made to play out in the way which creates the maximum amount of hype for the viewers. We have done our research and compiled a list of six anime that are at least as entertaining and fun to watch as Haikyuu!!.

VIZ

I may not be a volleyball player, but I did play football for many years so I can at least say that there is nothing remotely homosexual about simply playing in the same sports team as a bunch of other guys and passionately wanting to win together. I have never seen the guys in this show stare deeply into each other's eyes, be bashful in each other's presence, end up in any compromising positions with each other or shown any signs of being interested in one another beyond mere friends and teammates. So why is it that Karasuno are seemingly learning who their opponents are during the actual finals itself? A lot of people complained that they didn't like Coach Ukai's new VA, but I think it's fine.
