Worshipful Company of Mercers

Next year, when he returned to continue his surveys for Lord Fairfax, he brought with him, in addition to his surveyors, two youthful observers. The system has been designed with the needs of the practicing accountant, solicitor or Company Secretary in mind and can cope.

Early Land Grants and Settlers Along Patterson Creek

The keyword search is a stand alone search facility and should not be used in conjunction with above criteria regions, categories, etc. Like most holders of Fairfax grants, the grantees were content to have their deeds recorded in the Northern Neck land office and nowhere else; or perhaps they were unaware of any distinction.

Relevant data such as team name and season are part of the title, while your name and contact info are part of a sub-title. His original grant, Lot No, 22, may have been the site of a small fort established for the protection of stores during the French and Indian War.

Grants

Beaver Run joins the Creek just below Headsville. In fact, the church predated Wren by several centuries, but it was destroyed in the Great Fire, and Wren rebuilt it. No grants could have been made properly prior to 1748.

Early Land Grants and Settlers Along Patterson Creek

Across Coopers Mountain to James Spurgeons Bruceton Mills , then to the headwaters of the Youghiogheny and the Potomac's North Branch, the route took him to Thomas Logston's about five miles west of the present community of Mt. However, the exploits of George Rogers Clark west of the Ohio River eliminated the threat of either British or Indian attack from that direction. When McCabe finished, he and Vine stretched a ball-bearing chain over the map to assess the straightness of his call.

Grants

From this and other sources it is possible to identify perhaps seven of these casualties as having occurred along Pattersons Creek, but Washington's writings lead to the melancholy conclusion that there were more. I want to get you from A to B as quickly as possible.
