

Assessing Burmas Ceasefire Accords

Institute of Southeast Asian Studies - Assessing Burma's Ceasefire Accords

Description: The Burmese military government and numerous ethnic minority armed groups have entered a series of ceasefires since 1989 in spite of the fact that most previous talks between 1949 and 1983 failed. Why did the parties enter into ceasefire accords? What is the nature of the accords? What have been the consequences? What are the future scenarios? Written by two Burmese researchers, this study investigates the underlying factors of the secretive agreements, and identifies the consequences affecting stakeholders in the larger context of peacebuilding, political settlement, democratization, and the state-building process. The study concludes that recent ceasefires present a significant first step in solving the sixty-year old civil war. However after more than 17 years, they have not brought about peace of political settlement. The government-initiated ceasefires carry a heavy military focus, primarily seeking to reduce military threats and gain better control over the borderlands while placing greater emphasis on state building than on peacebuilding. Nevertheless, the accords have allowed many ceasefire groups to maintain or increase their strength, develop their areas, and more importantly, ceasefires have resulted in the local ethnic population having relatively better lives. Many ethnic armed groups will continue to pursue their goals through political means, but if at least some of their objectives are not met, a resumption of violence cannot be ruled out. This is the thirty-ninth publication in Policy Studies, a peer-reviewed East-West Center Washington series that presents scholarly analysis of key contemporary domestic and international political, economic, and strategic issues affecting Asia in a policy relevant manner.

-
Great Lakes -- Study and teaching.
Erie, Lake -- Study and teaching.
Coasts -- New York (State) -- Chautauqua County.
Burma -- Politics and government -- 1948-
Armistices -- Political aspects -- Burma
Ethnic conflict -- Burma
Assessing Burmas Ceasefire Accords
-
Policy studies -- 39
Assessing Burmas Ceasefire Accords
Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. [65]-66).
This edition was published in 2007

Filesize: 54.77 MB

Tags: #Myanmar #military #government #makes #ceasefire #offer, #but #not #to #protesters

Assessing Burma's Ceasefire Accords

As Major's Government had lost its majority in and was depending on unionist votes to stay in power, it was widely accused of pro-unionist bias as a result. That agreement forms the legal basis for demands for self-governance today.

Assessing Burma's Ceasefire Accords
by Win Min, Zaw Oo (Paperback, 2007) for sale online

We appreciate the honest and forthright way in which the consultation process was carried out and the depth and content of the submissions. Similarly, the Southern Sudan DDR Interim Authority was instituted and had established its regional offices set up. The move raises fears of renewed violence in Burma if other rebel cease-fire agreements break down.

Nationwide ceasefire accord collapses

There is a responsibility on society to ensure that there is no re-occurrence of the of 1969 and the early 1970s. The Burmese military government and numerous ethnic minority armed groups have entered a series of ceasefires since 1989 in spite of the fact that most previous talks between 1949 and 1983 failed. Divorce had long been available north of the border.

Peace needs more than a ceasefire...

Nevertheless, the accords have allowed many ceasefire groups to maintain or increase their strength, develop their areas, and more importantly, ceasefires have resulted in the local ethnic population having relatively better lives.

Assessing Burma's Ceasefire Accords by Win Min, Zaw Oo (Paperback, 2007) for sale online

© Charmaine Craig In 1896, William Jennings Bryan, a Democrat from Nebraska, ran for president on a fusion ticket with the Populist Party.

Related Books

- Catherine de Médicis - le pouvoir au féminin
- Account of the testicles, their common coverings and coats - and the diseases to which they are liab
- Conditioning and instrumental learning - a program for self-instruction.
- Atti del 1° Convegno tecnico-economico nazionale delle aziende municipalizzate e dei servizi comunali
- Assessment of Caribbean students - a guide for assessing children from CARICOM nation states and dep