Prairie Trail (IL)

As far as going down the hills, brake while going down and make sure you're watching where the path goes and you won't have anything to worry about.

Trail Map

The city of Garnett is the midway point, and the park office is located at the Garnett Area Chamber of Commerce building. There are also four official trailheads in Gainesville, plus access points off the Gainesville-Hawthorne Trail. Two miles long and bounded by farmland to the east and Des Plaines River Floodplain to the west, Prairie Farms Trail is an excellent way to reach Prairie Springs Park and continue your trail adventures around Lake Andrea or into the woods on Hackbarth Trail.

Arts abound in Lindsborg with the that houses the largest collection of Sandzen's impressionist paintings; the and Raymer Society for the Arts featuring works by Lester Raymer; the of contemporary artists; showcasing National Geographic photographer, Jim Richardson's work. From Crystal Lake to Ringwood, the trail is in good shape. Prairie Farms Trail is a crushed stone biking path that extends north toward County Highway C just west of Bain Station Road.

Trails

Enter north from Hill Avenue on Prospect Street, one block east of the NorthWestern Railroad Crossing. OK for a road bike on a dry day.

Hackbarth Trail extends two miles including access to an observation deck overlooking the wetlands as well as a boardwalk and bridge over the Des Plaines River, looking out toward the Jerome Creek Preserve. Looks they may be re-routing the trail further from the river towards some new housing. The amount of work that volunteers and the cities do for these areas is astounding.
