List of birds of Mauritius

This means regional assessments do not add up to the pan-European assessment since the latter only considers species once. It is evident that effective conservation requires genuine collaboration with and substantive support for Indigenous peoples. For example, in one forest in Madagascar, an is empowering the local community to conserve Lemurs by introducing educational programmes, creating additional jobs and developing alternative income sources to alleviate human pressure on the forest.

Reports on MDGs and Indigenous Peoples

The early settlers found three islands largely clad in tropical hardwood forests. It is hypothesized that being exposed to too much cosmic radiation can mutate genes, which can potentially weaken a species' genepool in the future.
