Field Marshall Sir Evelyn Wood

The entrance porch is believed to be a later addition and has attractive wrought-iron gates.

Henry Evelyn Wood

Wood then took command of the lead section of the advanced guard for the action that followed. When a catastrophic medical event forced Kristine Herron into early retirement from the Real Estate Industry, she applied many of those same investigative skills into researching Family History. A bayonet charge led by Major Robert Hackett and Lieutenant Arthur Bright cleared out the Zulus, but both British officers were fatally wounded in the action.

Life of Lieutenant

On January 22, a Zulu force had overrun the camp of No. Hearing on March 27 that a large force of Zulus was on the nearby Hlobane Mountain, Wood sent out a strong force for an attack of his own on March 28.

Southern Command (United Kingdom)

Defeated at Hlobane on 28 March 1879, where he had his horse shot from under him. On the evening of Remembrance Day November 11 Bean assisted by local people including scout groups lit each of the graves. They then moved some 300 yards back down the mountain in an attempt to find some open soil, but digging the grave in the hard ground was a laborious task.

Henry Evelyn Wood

On September 4, 1860, he was awarded the Victoria Cross. The doctor told Wolseley to say his farewells to Wood, since he 'never yet saw a man live with a shot in his pericardium.

The Post Office, by Sir Evelyn Murray

Evelyn Wood became General Officer Commanding Aldershot in 1889, his residence was Government House which still stands opposite the Queen's Hotel on the Farnborough Road. This knocked him insensible, cut a hole in both cheeks and his lip, and mashed his nose. Wood completed his legal studies and was at the on 30 April 1874.
