Trends in camping and outdoor hospitality—An international review

Sampling destination and geographical areas before visiting them on a future land-based vacation is one of the most influential aspects when choosing a cruise vacation aboard a cruise ship, and most cruise passengers frequently name the Caribbean, Alaska, Hawaii, Bahamas, Europe and the Mediterranean Sea as their favourite options in descending order.

Demographic factors and travel motivation among leisure tourists in Tanzania

An elephant is washed at Maesa Elephant Camp in Thailand in preparation for a show for visitors. If tourists stay in their resort in a given country, their only interaction with a local culture may be the staff at the hotel.

From Boomers to Gen Z: travel trends across the generations

This could be due to the fact that married couples spend less time enjoying leisure than singles. Therefore, it can be concluded that the indicators for all constructs met the reliability thresholds and thus qualified for further analyses. Over one-half of the cruises purchased are in the 6-8 day range, just over one-third are in the 2-5 day cruise range with less than 10% in the 9-17 day range of cruises and only about 1% are in excess of 17 day cruises.

The World of Travel in 1970

They list hyper-extreme tour operators such as War Zone Tours and Wild Frontiers both in operation since the 1990s as pioneers of the sector. The complex nature of travel motivation has caused many researchers to come up with different travel motives.

Demographic factors and travel motivation among leisure tourists in Tanzania

The chapter closes with a reflection on what all this means for tourism in British Columbia. Over 50% of all tourists had a university education and employed in different fields.

Travel Habits of Canadians: Where We Go and What We Do

Yet like any industry, there have been some significant developments over the past nine decades.
