Bonds of Community: The Lives of Farm Women in Nineteenth

Song Lyrics CHORUS: Which side are you on? Yet of all these utopian groups only the Amana Inspirationists developed and built a network of seven villages set in an agricultural region. Evidence from letters in the nineteenth century, and from surveys in the early twentieth century, show that both male and female children had fonder memories of mothers than of fathers. The latter is the sole surviving Shaker community.

African American Women and the Nineteenth Amendment (U.S. National Park Service)

The sewing machine was introduced into factories in the 1830s.

Their communal experiment ended in January of 1881 when the community was reconstituted as a joint stock corporation.

Utopias in America (U.S. National Park Service)

It was assumed that women owned the houses, and the fields belonged to the clans, and the women had equal rights to what was produced.

Bonds Of Community: The Lives Of Farm Women In Nineteenth Century New York by Nancy Grey Osterud

The world outside was becoming harder, more commercial, more demanding. The community practiced broom manufacturing, shoe manufacturing, flour processing, lumber milling and trap manufacturing. It paved the way for better working conditions such as hiring bilingual staff to interpret for workers and management, initiation of English-language classes and van services for workers.

Decently Dressed: Women's Fashion and Dress Reform in the Nineteenth Century United States

These arguments notwithstanding, on the eve of ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment, white suffragists, fearing offending white southerners, continued their racially discriminatory practices toward Black suffragists.
