Genesis 9:4 - Only you shall not eat flesh with its life, that is, its blood. I think those who have raised this issue in response to modern discussions of origins really are putting their finger on the critical theological and historical question for traditional Christian believers. I think that even the greatest saints or prophets, at least at some moment or another, have sinned.

Does the Bible Teach that Human Death is the Result of Sin?

If God chose to create organisms, specifically mankind, through millions of years of evolution, what happens to the theological underpinnings of original sin and redemption without a real, flesh-and-blood Adam and Eve? This is making a virtue of necessity. Some were evolutionists Haeckel, Vogt, whereas others Agassiz were not. Second, death is pictured as a friend in 1 Corinthians 15.

Evolution, Evil and Original Sin

Were there no pain, or suffering, there would be no death, and no sin.

Original antigenic sin: A comprehensive review

Even some defenders of strong versions of the superiority thesis e.

In my 2011 article, although I acknowledged that the step beyond merely biological humanity could be made either on philosophical or on theological grounds i. {note: If a link is CAPITALIZED it's a LINKS-PAGE like the one you're now reading, or is a SECTION in my. .

Original Sin

This made the presence of evil in the world easier to understand, and answered the question of why a benevolent God would allow such a state of affairs to exist.
