Let them tell you what they want to tell you. The Project: Smartwool aspired to create a shared corporate language and create a cohesive approach to category positioning, color theory and line management across all segments to align the brand under a single branded umbrella. Level 2: Evaluation of Lessons Learned Repository At level 2 organizations have a defined process and basic tools for identifying and documenting lessons learned.

After Hurricane Sandy: Time to Learn and Implement the Lessons in Preparedness, Response, and Resilience

Team members were more enthusiastic about their work and supportive of one another, so the decision was made to institute some type of reward for successful completion of key stages. Utilities can, however, undertake cost-effective actions to reduce potential outages and speed up power restoration in the event of catastrophic disasters, such as performing rigorous testing and analysis of aging transmission and distribution system assets to determine when various assets should be repaired or replaced, and the lowest-cost approaches for doing so. This network of substations, transformers, and distribution lines delivers electricity to individual customers.
