The Rake Inn, Littleborough, Rochdale

Last update: January 2018 © David Ratledge Â. One point of view in the 1880s was that vertically integrating the weaving sheds into new mills would reduce costs and lead to greater profits. In the other direction the route they determined went via Croston Barn Road and Green Lane to join up with the north-south road near Cabus.

He also has chaired the California Cotton Ginners Association and was its Ginner of the Year in 2000. Certainly in latter years between the peaks the service only operated between Bingley and Cullingworth, where connections were made with the Yorkshire service which also ran hourly. If they were on time, opposing buses were due to pass one another in Score Hill, so could easily meet on the bend.
