CATHOLIC ENCYCLOPEDIA: Desiderius Erasmus

We preserve the letters written by a dear friend, we kiss them fondly, we carry them about, we read them again and again, yet there are many thousands of Christians who, although they are learned in other respects, never read, however, the evangelical and apostolic books in an entire lifetime. Erasmus knew about the variant readings that are known to modern textual critics. On April 17, 1529, Berquin himself was burned at the stake.
