The theatrical producer works with real actuality, which, though he may always remould, yet forces him to remain bound by the laws of real space and real time. Neglect of this element in the work of final filmic polishing may occasion inexpressive material, unsuitable for plastic treatment, and thus may destroy the whole construction.

Film Technique and Film Acting by Vsevolod Pudovkin

But the film of deeper content, the value of which lies always in the impression it creates as a whole, can certainly not be thus divided into parts for the spectator to see separately, one each week.

Film technique ; and Film acting : the cinema writings of V.I. Pudovkin : Pudovkin, Vsevolod Illarionovich, 1893

Sadly and reluctantly the hooded driver urges on his tired 22 PUDOVKIN horse. Suddenly, passed in to him surreptitiously, he receives a note that next day he is to be set free.

The originality of these foreign pictures had stirred up a wealth of film theory and criticism which was valuable and passionate but without a generally accepted reference point. In the corner on a bench, lies an old man covered with rags ; he breathes with difficulty. Simultaneously with this movement has appeared a time non-existent in reality, inseparably bound up with each movement.
