Resources for Parents and Teachers: Motivating & supporting children during remote learning

Autumn report card: The high cost of COVID-19 School systems were understandably overwhelmed and unequipped to respond when COVID-19 began rapidly spreading in the spring. Additionally, it allows other students the opportunity to engage with the material in multiple ways as needed. Accurate psychological testing of these individuals is challenging due to their frequent limitations in controlled movement, vision, hearing, communication, or cooperative behavior.

Specific Roles of Special Educators in Serving Students with Disabilities and their Parents

In some places, teachers are using technological devices to record and store progress-monitoring data.

Creating Positive School Experiences for Students with Disabilities

It is important to emphasize that not every successful individual possesses each of these attributes, and some attributes may be present to a greater or lesser degree.

Effective Teaching Practices for Students in Inclusive Classrooms

Distinguishing Between Learning Disabilities and Other Conditions Differential diagnosis is necessary to distinguish among disorders, syndromes, and factors that can interfere with academic performance.

Comprehensive Assessment and Evaluation of Students With Learning Disabilities

In fact, as school counselors it is our ethical obligation to be advocates for students with disabilities.
