Aristophanes Biography

I have brought you everything needful and much more into the bargain.

Aristophanes Biography

We have now a thousand towns that pay us tribute; let them command each of these to feed twenty Athenians; then twenty thousand of our citizens would be eating nothing but hare, would drink nothing but the purest of milk, and always crowned with garlands, would be enjoying the delights to which the great name of their country and the trophies of Marathon give them the right; whereas to-day you are like the hired labourers who gather the olives; you follow him who pays you.

He inherited the underworld from his father! And yet you stay from the rescue! BDELYCLEON And what will the suit be about? As the two leave, Euripides scolds—a god to whom he has so dedicatedly served while alive—for abandoning him in death. My bum is getting sore! Come on, come with me! Dionysus So... and did you see all those bastards who beat their parents and all those others who swear false oaths, like Heracles told us? Dionysus Throws effusively all the remaining pebbles in the bucket.
