The Impact of Private Providers and Competition on our NHS

That exemption applies where the services can only be provided by one provider for technical reasons or reasons associated with the protection of exclusive rights. However, the effect of RCI on efficiency has been strongly debated.

Competition

The first relates to the transaction costs involved in the market, such as those that arise from contract negotiations between commissioners and providers of care.

Contracts, Co

Health Econ, 7 3 : 187—97. Under AQP anyone is allowed to bid, with no regard to their previous expertise. In NHS frameworks, there are often questions asking about safeguarding practices.

Competition

Provider collaboratives are not defined either, but are self-determined, with no required local connection and clearly open to multinational private companies and monopoly power. Management Accounting Research 7 1 : 25—51.
