This caricature was created by European scholars such as Kant, Hegel and, much later, Levy-Bruhl to name just a few. Julius Nyerere of Tanzania is another philosopher of note in the early period of African philosophy. Conclusion The development of African philosophy through the periods yields two vital conceptions for African philosophy, namely that African philosophy

Conversationalism The Conversationalists are those who seek to create an enduring corpus in African philosophy by engaging elements of tradition and individual thinkers in critical conversations. A Dictionary of Louisiana Biography. It can be stated that much of these endeavors fall under the early period.

History of African Philosophy

In this work, there were strong suggestions not only that Africa has philosophy but that the so-called Western philosophy, the very bastion of European identity, was stolen from Africa. On the whole, this method points to the idea of relationships among interdependent, interrelated and interconnected realities existing in a network whose peculiar truth conditions can more accurately and broadly be determined within specific contexts. If however, some would want to retain it as part of African philosophy, it would carefully fall within the pre-literate or the pre-systematic era.

Welding all these divisions together are the perspectives of Peter Bodunrin and Kwasi Wiredu. Every being, therefore, is a variable with capacity to join a mutual interaction.

Entertainment & Arts

In other words, what this periodization shows is that African philosophy as a system first began in the late 1920s. In the introduction to his 1985 edited volume Philosophy in Africa: Trends and Perspectives, Bodunrin created two broad schools for all the subdivisions in both Oruka and Momoh, namely the Traditionalist and Modernist schools.
