Rashi interpreted thus in Temurah :
following Samuels death David dwelt with the Philistines for four months, and for one year, Saul and Samuel were together, and after Amalek, Samuel separated from Saul for two years, see end of Zebachim. So it is said in the first chapter of Ketuboth of JT that Moses our master established it see Torath Adam.

That is why we know it is more commendable to pray the Big Afternoon Prayer in early afternoon.

Sefer Yehudit 1

Rambam of blessed memory wrote in the chapter Aveloth and in the first chapter of Ketuboth in the JT and in Torath Haadam, that Moses also added seven days of mourning and seven days of feast. Admon and Hanan ben Avishalom, great sages and civil judges in Jerusalem, were mentioned in the last chapter of Ketuboth. Half of the people followed Simeon the Righteous and his disciple Antigonus and their school in accordance with the traditions received from Ezra and from the prophets, and half followed Sanballat and his sons-in-law who offered peace-offerings and burnt-offerings outside of the House of the Lord.
