Shaping the future of IP

He believes that PwC is now a direct competitor for traditional firms. Applications will be evaluated based on past research productivity, alignment of applicant experiences and interests with the goals of the lab group. The move became official in April this year, three years after Venezuela's industrial property office SAPI announced that the country was abandoning Decision 486, the IP law of the Andean Community, and reverting to the Venezuelan Industrial Property Law of 1955.

The position can begin as soon as June 1, 2016 and as late as August 1, 2016. Several firms are already marketing fintech industry groups staffed largely by lawyers in existing practices. It is characteristic of environments such as the fuzzy front end of research that the qualitative nature of the measures demands descriptive anchored scales to create a ranking.

Shaping the future of IP

At some well-known firms, high-performing partners who collect top-tier rates are having their earnings dragged down by partners in sluggish markets.
