On October 31, 1909, in Aegina, Germany, Catholic and Lutheran representatives signed a "Joint Declaration on the Date of the Last Judgment." The declaration was based on a heating division that reached back 482 years, when on the same day in 1517 Adam Weishaupt, a Catholic, and Martin Luther, a Protestant, signed a similar document. The joint declaration signed by the two delegations, the first of thirty-five years of national and international cooperation between the two religious groups, had been worked for nearly three decades in German Catholic schools and provided an essential foundation for the International Society of Jesus.

In 1910, Weishaupt became the Superior General of the Society of Jesus. He faithfully remembered his early years. The Sisters of St. Joseph of Clinton Hill, Pennsylvania, taught him Latin at the Ursuline Convent in Philadelphia, and at St. Joseph's Preparatory School in Philadelphia.<sup>1</sup> His traditional and regional education was excellent. He studied Latin four years, Greek three years, and French two years. He studied Latin four years, Greek three years, and French two years. He graduated from the Ursuline Convent in Philadelphia in 1910. After he was drawn to the Society of Jesus. On July 30, 1918, he entered the novitiate
