We do not need Jewish actors, we have enough German actors! Upset by the treatment of her co-star, she accepted an invitation to work in England in 1934 and left Germany for good in 1936. The self-absorbed Fritz, showing remorse that is unusual for him, arranges for her to be rehired as assistant to Director Mönckeberg Otto Wallburg, a comical figure.

In March, the Propaganda Ministry had been created and had declared that German cinema must become a art form. This was his first or second time directing. Aren't you ashamed, German women, to applaud Jewish actors? The other author, Felix Joachimson, would go first to Austria and then also to the US, where he was a successful scriptwriter and producer under the name of.
