Edutopia

There is no statutory duty upon parents to inform the local authority that they are home educating home schooling if they do not require consent.

Youth in Foster Care No Longer Have to Change Schools, Even If They Move

Understanding these common problems and unique needs will help policymakers to design reforms to improve educational opportunities for children in foster care. It's not hard to imagine a time in the near future when all parents will be able to quickly call up information such as a student's schedule for the week, current assignments, and suggestions from teachers about what they can do to support learning goals at home.

You are not required to give any reasons for your decision. Maryland Public Policy Institute, Focus Group Study: Foster Care Families, Children, and education, December 2006, at April 10, 2007..

How Children's Foster Care Experiences Affect their Education

What Federal, State, and Local Policymakers Should Do With these principles in mind, federal, state, and local policymakers should make certain specific reforms.

Youth in Foster Care No Longer Have to Change Schools, Even If They Move

When we walk into a school and see parents and teachers working together, in all sorts of roles, it's a sure sign that the school challenges the very best in students and helps all, regardless of race, class, or culture, realize their fullest potential. The estimated 518,000 American children currently in foster care are among the most at-risk children in American society. Life Skills Instruction and Preparation for Independence.
