Equal Justice Under Law

Bar ethical codes and commentary have long maintained that lawyers have an obligation to assist those who cannot afford counsel. Plato wrote around 350 BC: Where the law is subject to some other authority and has none of its own, the collapse of the state, in my view, is not far off; but if law is the master of the government and the government is its slave, then the situation is full of promise and men enjoy all the blessings that the gods shower on a state.

Pericles: The First Great Statesman of the Ancient World

It is a shameful irony that the nation with the most lawyers has among the least adequate systems for legal assistance. As a political leader, Pericles himself was untainted by corruption, although he was not indifferent to making money. At issue was whether the Sixth Amendment applies to defendants in state courts.
