7. Transportation Systems

However, social isolation is a widespread and growing issue that has serious negative consequences for seniors, their families and their communities. The experiences of two for-profit companies and of the US Defense Intelligence Agency DIA demonstrate how insights from network analysis can illuminate a number of organizational imperatives: moving from a branch- and region-centric structure to a matrix one, breaking down silos, and combining globally dispersed personnel into a single, unified function.

Summary

But for others the barriers are social and attitudinal. When a community's only pharmacy closes, it creates a void and residents must adapt to find new ways to meet their medication needs.
