U. S. Glass Company or United States Glass Company

During this ten-year period, stemware in several new colors was introduced to coordinate with Interpace's Shenango China.

Guide To Kings Crown Glass

While collectors of vintage glass often purchase these pieces for display, many others maintain them for everyday use. Tiffin stems are fine quality blown glass with intricate etchings. Not all pieces were made for the full thirty year production run.

All indications are that the formula was the same and only the name of the color changed in Fostoria literature. In 1969, it was sold to Interpace, and in 1980, it was closed. This will protect the fragile crystal from chips, nicks and breakage.

Antique and Collectible Glass Value and Guides

When perusal of 4 search engines yields only references to eBay auctions porcelain! The 5098 and 5099 are the two principal stemware lines used for most of Fostoria's colored etched patterns.

Match Your Crystal Stemware Pattern

Bob Page and Dale Frederiksen, who own the Replacements company, co-authored the stemware identification guide.
