WELLESLEY POLE, Hon. William (1763)

I wonder if it is! In the spring of 1153, it was resolved to remove fifteen hundred of them to Merligues — Lunenburg — which was accordingly done, transports having been provided for that purpose. These wrecks were still visible in Bedford Basin in 1828, but not a vestige of them is now discernible.

pupils? Witnessed by John Keyes, John Wetherby. Substance of the speech of the Right Honourable Will.

The story of my life ; or, The sunshine and shadow of seventy years / by Mary A. Livermore ... with hitherto unrecorded incidents and recollections of three years' experience as an army nurse in the great Civil War, and reminiscences of twenty

The State documents bearing on the subject are both numerous and voluminous, the claims of the British to possession being mainly based on early discovery, and those of the French on priority of settlement. In returning, the fleet encountered a severe storm, in which one vessel, with sixty persons, was wrecked on the island of Anticosti ; two foundered, all hands perishing ; and several were driven to the West Indies.
