Poems of Mr. John Milton : the 1645 ed. With Essays in analysis / by C.Brooks and J.E.Hardy

Inferior to the vilest now become Of man or worm, the vilest here excel me: They creep, yet see; I, dark in light, exposed To daily fraud, contempt, abuse and wrong. Within doors, or without, still as a fool, In power of others, never in my own— Scarce half I seem to live, dead more than half. It contains extracts from about 80 different authors whose works Milton had studied. Come, pensive Nun, devout and pure, Sober, steadfast, and demure, All in a robe of darkest grain, Flowing with majestic train, And sable stole of cypress lawn Over thy decent shoulders drawn.

Begun in 1892 at The University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee, the Review is devoted to American and British fiction, poetry, and reviews — as well as essays in criticism and reminiscence. But now lead on; In me is no delay; with thee to go Is to stay here; without thee here to stay Is to go hence unwilling: thou to me Art all things under Heaven, all places thou, Who for my wilful crime art banished hence. I was a fool, too rash, and quite mistaken In what I thought would have succeeded best.

The shorter poems of John Milton (1970 edition)

On his return from Italy he had undertaken the training of his nephews. They, hand in hand, with wandering steps and slow, Through Eden took their solitary way. Towered cities please us then, And the busy hum of men, Where throngs of Knights and Barons bold, In weeds of peace, high triumphs hold, With store of Ladies, whose bright eyes Rain influence, and judge the prize Of wit or arms, while both contend Of win her grace whom all commend.

Milton, John (1608

See the Appendix on P. Greatly instructed I shall hence depart, Greatly in peace of thought, and have my fill Of knowledge, what this vessel can contain; Beyond which was my folly to aspire. No, no; of my condition take no care; It fits not; thou and I long since are twain; Nor think me so unwary or accursed To bring my feet again into the snare Where once I have been caught.
