Social Movements Book Review: Social

*A fresh mapping of feminist anthropology, with outstanding contributions ranging from body politics to transnationalism. The time is right for this smart and inspiring book.—Foreword by E. Babu, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
"A very fine and welcome addition to the field."—Carla Freeman, Emory University
"Feminist anthropology emerged in the 1970s as a much-needed corrective to the discipline's androcentric biases. Far from being a marginalized subdiscipline, it has become a vibrant and dynamic field of study that not only anthropologists, but also a host of other disciplines, Mapping Feminist Anthropology in the Twenty-First Century reveals the important role that feminist anthropologists have played in challenging dominant paradigms of power, gender, ethnicity, violence, and environmental degradation. It also celebrates the work they have done in challenging the dominant paradigm of anthropological representation about sex, gender, and sexuality."
LEN M. SILVERSTEIN is an anthropologist and international development consultant. She has conducted research in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and South America, and has taught at universities in the United States, Canada, from Vietnam to Peru.—About the Author
